Interests in the buildings: I had an interview with claimant's father this evening. His son is employed in the Post Office as a Telegraph Boy. On Easter Monday he cycled to business at the G.P.O. and machine was put in the bicycle shed. A little after twelve o'clock he was ordered by the rebels to leave the premises, but was not allowed to take the machine and it is believed that it was subsequently destroyed in the fire. It is a second hand machine and was bought about 18 months ago at an auction for £4. The claimant is 14½ years of age, and has been at business for last twelve months. He had nothing to do with the rebellion.

In view of the foregoing I consider the sum of £3. adequate compensation
