Dear Sirs,

We have received your letter of the 19th June and with regard to your remark to the effect that there is no direct evidence of the goods having been warehoused in Dublin, we do not find that we wrote you to this effect. In our letter of the 17th we stated that we were informed by the Steamship Co. that the goods reached their warehouse in Dublin which was looted by the rebels and the whereabouts of the goods is quite unknown to them.

The name of the Steamship Co. in Dublin is the British & Irish Steam Packet Co. their London address being North Quay, Eastern Basin, London Dock. If there is any further information you require we shall be pleased to supply you with same.

Yours truly,

Dear Sirs,

We have received your letter of June 16th and have taken note of your remarks, we would respectfully point out to you that the Insurance Co.'s responsibility ceases when the goods are deposited in warehouse in Dublin.

The goods we understand duly reached the Steamship Co.'s warehouse in Dublin which was however looted by the rebels and the whereabouts of the goods is quite unknown to them.

As you are no doubt aware, a committee has been formed to deal with such claims as per the particulars we have already sent to you, but before this committee will proceed in the matter they require a subscription of 10/-. As you are the actual claimants in this matter we think it would be quite as well for you to take the matter up with them direct.

Yours truly,
