re Miss Brennan's claim

Dear Sir:-

Miss Brennan tells me that all Singers machines were fully paid for by her with the exception of one on which there was due a balance of £4.11.9. My client has offered to pay this amount to Messrs Singers, but, they have declined to accept same pending the settlement of their claim. Kindly let me hear from you in reference to this matter, and let me know whether there are any other queries in reference to the claim that I could assist you with.

Yours faithfully,

mm

Dear Sir:-

I have sent in a claim in this matter on behalf of Miss Brennan, and wish to amend same as follows. I want to add an item for cash, notes etc on the premises £25, and the item for a Mahogany cash desk 5 ft high should be a Canary wood cash desk as shown in Harris & Sheldon's catalogue page 227. The sum of £8 is claimed for this item, while it is of value £27. I understand the claim has been referred to Mr. R.N. Kennedy Legal Loss Assessor.

287/16

I beg to return you this claim in duplicate as requested. In reference to the list of costumes for which my client claims. My client admits legal liability to her customers for their costumes, and as a matter of fact replaced a good number of these costumes already, and is replacing the others according as her customers apply for same. I have obtained a tradè catalogue, setting out particulars of prices of some of the articles which my client claims for, and I would be glad to put same at your disposal of whatever Assessor is intended to deal with the claim.

Dear Miss Bunnan

The Empire bedroom suite was worth £50. I have enclosed a description of it. I am unfortunately unable to value the other goods. Your best plan wd. be to price goods like them in the shops, then you would be sure of the value. Of course goods are worth more now than before the war.

If you think I can give you any more help please let me know, I shall be always very pleased to help you.

Yours sincerely

John Butler

THE VERY LATEST HAND MACHINE

The SINGER 99

THIS is the lightest of all Lock Stitch Hand Machines, and is specially designed for hand machine work; it is silent and very light running, making it eminently suitable for use by ladies wishing to do their own sewing.

THIS handsome Cabinet is so constructed that the Machine can be pushed down below the top of the case; the Extension Leaf shown is then folded over the top, covering the Machine.

When the Machine is required for use, a slight pressure on a button causes it to rise into position, where it is supported by the top doors being pushed in, while the bottom doors are opened outwards, to allow access to the treadle.

The following Machines are supplied on this style of Cabinet work—15K, 66K and 127K.
