Dear Sir, re 4017. 29th July 1916.

I made enquiries at the Castle as to the position of my Claim and was told it had not been sent forward for payment. I was further informed it was the intention of the Committee to treat it on the same footing as a Solicitors Claim. This is a very great hardship to me, as my loss was absolutely ruinous and left me without the means of carrying on my business. Would you be so kind as to bring the matter under the notice of your Committee, with a request that I be paid a sum on account to enable me to restart my business which will be otherwise completely lost. The demands on me are very urgent as I have a large and helpless young family to provide for, and under those circumstances I would strongly appeal to your Committee to specially recommend my case to the notice of the Treasury. My position is different from those who had means.

Yours faithfully,

Denis O'More

Mr P. J. Kelly,

The Chairman, on looking again at the last paragraph of Messrs' report, thinks it better that you and Mr Osborn should see the case once more before sending recommendation to Government.

should not exceed the estimated cost

not the Solicitor's Bill

The estimate is based on the value of 111 files at an average of £ 5 each. The value consists in facility to continue the adjustments each year, the original work being the hardest part and foundation of the business. The claim represents the value of labor lost by reason of necessary documents being destroyed by fire, and which must be replaced in order to carry on business. The item of £175 represents money paid to James M. Magee, Solicitor, and others for advice on documents destroyed. It is possible that such papers are not insurable.
