The watch was at least 18 carats: the chain was not so pure: but I am not certain now about the exact carats in each case. They were in my possession for many years, and I would give £16 to have them back. I did not buy them when they were new but so far as I can recollect they cost me about £16. Their original cost prices must have substantially exceeded my estimate.

I make no claim in respect of office clothes taken, valuable private books damaged by being used for barricades, &c.
