Dear Sir,

On Saturday 22nd April last I handed in at the Local Post Office here the above Deed of Assignment for stamping together with a sum of £6.10.0. stamp duty. Since then I have heard nothing about it and am wondering whether the Deed was destroyed in the recent fire at the Post Office. I have made several enquiries at the Post Office here and have got no account and they advised me to write Secretary. G.P. Office. The matter is very urgent and I shall thank you to let me know if the Deed is destroyed and what am I to do about the matter.

Yours obediently,

J. P. Lavan.

The Secretary,
General Post Office,
Dublin.

Co. Limerick, 3rd June 1916.

Sir,

I am in receipt of yours of the 2nd instant and note what you say about presenting a fresh copy of the Deed of Assignment at Newcastle West Post Office when steps will be taken to have it stamped, which will be done as soon as possible. However this will entail further expense on my client in drawing up a fresh Deed, and as he was in no way responsible for its destruction I think the Post Office ought to compensate him.

Yours faithfully,

The Secretary,
General Post Office,
Dublin.
