Remarks

The proper way to deal with this claim would be to turn it down altogether. In my opinion the claim is grossly fraudulent. I have had interviews with the claimant and also the person (Curran) to whom it appears money is owing. We are asked to believe that during the entire week previous to the trouble this impecunious woman invested in fruit to the extent of £20. odd, and during the entire period none of it was sold. The absurdity of this contention is obvious. She sustained some loss but from inquiries made I have no doubt that my valuation will cover same.
